With F.M.L.

We thank Alcoa Foundation, Texas Alcoa Mgr. Fred Bergeron, and other Alcoans for making possible the $5,000 toward construction costs of the tennis center at City Park.

We thank state and federal people, whomever, for their enabling Cameron Public Library to receive about $3,000 in additional aid for new books and other materials to enhance Cameron's fine small library.

We also thank Alcoa Foundation for its support of the Dallas Symphony's visit here twice in the past few years and its contribution to St. Edward Hospital about five years ago. This is an example of major industry encouraging the fine arts, recreation, and health care in this small city.

If we have all the business, all the football, all the popular things, it is not enough. We are lucky that Alcoa takes this view, that others in Cameron take this view, that sports enthusiasts likewise take this view.

We don't understand criticism from Cong. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., who says revenue sharing funds are wasted on such things as tennis courts and ice rinks. Maybe half the cost of these courts came from revenue sharing funds.

The congressman from Massachusetts fails to realize tennis is the fastest growing participant sports in the country, one of the major TV spectator sports in the country, among other good things about tennis. Without major donations from Alcoa, city civic clubs AND revenue sharing, these courts would not have been built. Cong. Drinan may be right about ice rinks.

Recreation, the fine arts, and reading are a major part of people's lives, 100 percent. Everything is in final analysis art, music, or information.

Some physical and mental exercise once in a while makes hard work manageable.

To those who lead in making such things reality, we say: "Thanks!"

When rescuers reached him; he was in good spirits, joking with his rescuers.

He Got His Buck Anyway

McGREGOR

Most fellows who like deer hunting manage to make it to a lease on opening day, but not Frank Lam of Ogelsby. He is as fond of deer hunting as anyone,but this year--his 96th--he decided it would be best for him not to go. But he got a buck anyway. His former hunting buddies shot seven bucks, and brought him one of them.

Advance warning signs with flashing beacons will also alert drivers on those highways before they reach the intersection.

State, Federal Grants Due For Library

The Cameron Public Library will receive $1,043 in state funds and $2,017 from federal grants during the next library year.

The money may be used to purchase books, cassettes, magazines, records, and prints.

Area librarians met at the Temple Public Library on Nov. 17 to discuss allocations and proper use of the funds. Recommendations and guidelines were given by Pat Smith, representative from the Texas State Library.

"The Cameron library has benefited greatly by the grants in the past," Mrs. Willis Looney, local librarian said. "Through use of the money the library has kept an up-dated selection of materials for the people of this area."

Mall Movies Set By Chamber

ALCOA FOUNDATION CHECK for $5,000 is presented to CDA director A. W. McCullin by Alcoa Rockdale Works Manager Fred Bergeron. The funds are for the four tennis courts at City Park. Alcoa Foundation Gives $5,000 For Cameron's Tennis Center

Rockdale Works Mgr. Fred Bergeron has presented a check for $5,000 from the Alcoa Foundation toward construction cost of the four-court tennis center at Cameron Park.

The check was presented to A. W. McCullin and sent cash contributions for the lighted, red-green complex to a total of $8,700.

Contributions of $1,600 each have come from the Cameron Noon and Evening Lions Clubs, $300 from Cameron Rotary Club, $200 from Cameron Knights of Columbus.

Survey work was donated by volunteers from the Soil Conservation Service, Wayne Mann directing. The courts are located on the north end of the City Park, between East Fourth and East Sixth Streets.

Town & Country Tennis Club members donated labor and skills in leveling and painting court surfaces and lines. Personnel from Texas Power & Light Co. donated considerable time toward installation and adjustment of the 48-light, 20-candle-rated lighting system.

Co-ordination of surface paving, backstop and fencing, and automatic lighting system was by Community Development Agency of Cameron.

A. W. McCullin of CDA, citing the contributions of Alcoa Foundation, the civic clubs, private and public agencies, said:

"The tennis courts in City Park are an exercise in community co-operation for the betterment of the community. This has been a joint effort by the Town & Country Tennis Association, the Noon Lions Club, the Evening Lions Club, Rotary Club, Knights of Columbus, Alcoa Foundation, and the City. Texas Power & Light Co. has been most cooperative and made a meaningful contribution to the project. The Soil Conservation Service assisted in preliminary survey and layout of the courts."

The Alcoa Foundation contribution completed private funding pledged to the project. Alcoa has also donated to St. Edward Hospital and two concert appearances in Cameron by Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

Balance of construction costs is being paid out of city revenue sharing funds. Council voted unanimously last summer to support construction of the public courts.

City Receives Sales Tax Rebate For October

Comptroller Bob Bullock mailed checks totaling $14.5 million to 670 cities and towns, rebating their October city sales tax.

According to Bullock, Cameron received $8,450.98; Rockdale $6,132.14; Rogers $1,515.84; Rosebud $4,039.73; and Thorndale $2,315.83.

Bullock said his office has rebated a total of $223.7 million to cities collecting the sales tax so far in 1975. During all of calendar 1974, he said, a total of $233.7 million was rebated.

With a normal November and December, Bullock predicted city budgets will enjoy $25 million to $30 million more revenue from the sales tax this year over 1974.

The Comptroller said 154 of the total 824 cities collecting the sales tax will not receive their rebate until the end of the December quarter, because they fell below the $500 cutoff for monthly rebates.

Milam's Lignite Deposits Good For 50 Years Of Strip Mining

There is enough lignite buried in Milam County to keep mining operations busy for 30 to 50 years, a Shell Oil executive told a gathering of local businessmen, county and city officials, and Rotary Club members Wednesday.

Keith Doig, Shell's vice-president of mining ventures, said the county's deposit of lignite contains from 150 to 200 million tons and he expects the actual mining to start within the next four to five years.

Doig said the company now has 22,000 acres leased in Milam County in a strip three miles wide and about 12 miles long. The area stretches from Rockdale to Milano in the southern part of the county.

Doig was accompanied from Houston to Cameron by Neil Isto, mining ventures manager, and public relations manager William Devereux. He held a press conference at Citizens National Bank prior to the Rotary luncheon which was attended by county and city officials and civic leaders, along with Central Texas press representatives.

During the press conference Doig declined to tell how much Shell is paying for the leases, but did say "the price is going up."

The close proximity of the lignite deposits to Texas industries will make marketing the coal easier, Doig said, and added tha t the quality of the material restricts it to a local market rather than for national use.

Shell Oil started a search for the lignite about two years ago and found the fuel in Milam County on land that was not leased. The company has been leasing land for about 1 1/2 years.

Isto explained that core drilling is now being done by Shell crews to determine exact location of the deposits. Then will come drawing up of a topographic map to define how much surface has to be removed to get at the lignite. Environmental studies will follow, with the studies continued during actual mining.

Wildlife and plant inventories and a survey of cash crop yields will be made for the reclamation process, which will be a continuing project. Socio-economic studies will determine what impact the mining will have on communities in the county.

Doig said there is not much cultivated land in the leased area.

Actual mining operations will employ between 200 and 300 people, Doig said, and Shell's goal is to use as many local people as possible in the operation.

He said Shell's plan for mining is farther along than those in other states on account of the permits required from the state. Two rigs have been moved in and a third is due soon. But it will be some three or four years before all studies are complete and operations start, Doig said.

A Case For 'Distance'...

Reading a cover story in the current Columbia Journalism Review, we appreciate the comments of former Senator J. William Fulbright about the nation's regional newspapers.

This would be newspapers outside the major dailies locked into covering the Washington-New York complex. It might even mean non-dailies.

Writes Fulbright for CJR:

"The special strength of the writers for the smaller newspapers is journalistic 'distance'--a virtue much celebrated but rarely practiced by their more famous Washington-based colleagues. The latter tend to express 'distance' through vituperation, but more commonly cultivate all possible intimacy with the high officials whose activities they report. The officials in turn find it advantageous to respond, with the result that some of the elite of the Washington press corps have effectively made the transition from observers to participants in the making of policy. Free as their writers are from such temptations and aspirations, the smaller newspapers seem to me, by and large, to come closer to fulfilling their journalistic obligations to report the news accurately and interpret it with personal detachment. . ."

Fulbright lost a 1974 bid for re-election to the Senate in Arkansas. He was chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 15 years, a critic of the Vietnam War, president of the University of Arkansas and namesake for Fulbright Scholarships.

If this same detachment, made possible by distance, is applied equally to local affairs covered by newspapers, wherever they are, the detachment critical to commentary is criticized for a certain bloodless commitment to reality. It is a tough assignment.

Smaller newspapers have the problem of larger newspapers covering the local stuff, because it is necessarily closer to the writers. New York, for example, is a financial disaster area where the globe-rattling New York Times documents events like an encyclopaedia. Somehow, those local problems escaped solution.

The Times, the Washington dailies, the news bureaus, the newsmagazines, and broadcasters are part of the problem contributing to part of the solution of national and international affairs.

Perhaps size is more and more less important to the contribution of a newspaper. We have always thought so and have often said so.

The former Senator from Arkansas, now with a law firm in Washington, substantiates an argument often put down as provincial, an argument advanced by former Vice-President Spiro Agnew, who discredited himself in government, but whose case for journalistic "distance" as Fulbright calls it still merits public support.

Walter Williams, founder of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri, said "The supreme test of good journalism is the measure of its public service."

That perhaps means detachment at home and abroad. The only proof is what is happening "down home," at home and abroad.

Cousteau Probes Sea For Legend

By Maria Vamiedakis

ATHENS

Reuter--An exploration of the sea-bed near Aegean Island by French underwater explorer Jacques-Yves Cousteau may shed new light on the legendary continent of Atlantis.

Following an agreement with the Greek National Tourist Organization (EOT) and the archaelogical authorities, the French underwater explorer will shoot two scientific films in the Aegean Sea. Cousteau hopes his research trip in the Aegean will reveal the secrets of a 4,000-year-old civilization and perhaps even lead him to the legandary continent of Atlantis.

Cousteau has said that the main point of his trip is to search for remnants of a civilization believed to have been destroyed by a volcanic upheaval in the Aegean close to Thera (Santorini) Island in about 1500 B.C.

Cousteau will begin his exploration later this month on board his special vessel Calypso. The vessel is equipped with the most modern devices for research and exploration of the sea depths. A Greek archaeologist will supervise all the work.

The research is being sponsored and financed partly by the Greek government. The EOT subsidized the project with $1 million. The Cousteau society and the Greek Film Center will also back the films which will be entitled "In Search of Atlantis" and "Treasure Island" and will be distributed to the world's major television networks.

During a recent visit to Athens, Cousteau said he has no new theory on whether the military, trading, and religious center of Atlantis did exist and fell victim to the eruptions which destroyed the Minoan civilization.

"We may produce a great number of astonishing antiquities from our exploration of the Aegean Sea. On the other hand, we may find very little of real value," Cousteau said.

According to many Greek and foreign archaelogists the Aegean Sea is believed to be strewn with valuable antiquities from sunken ships belonging to various civilizations, which either fell victims to storms, local wars or piracy. Scientists already have located the wrecks of more than 140 ships, some of them the oldest so far discovered.

The existence of Atlantis has been a controversial issue for many years. Some scientists have claimed that there is in fact part of Plato's lost continent of Atlantis. According to the ancient writer, a continent existed but then was submerged by huge landslides.

The late Professor Spyridon Marinotos, former general inspector of the Greek antiquities department, had described these theories as irresponsible tales. He believed the idea of Atlantis sprung from the myth of a sinking island after a volcanic eruption. He said nobody could be sure of the existence of Atlantis because the myth had changed and varied through the ages.

In November 1970 Marinatos discovered extremely well-preserved frescoes on walls of unearthed two-story buildings in Thera. These frescoes were similar to others found at Knossos on the island of Crete.

He said the island of Thera prospered and its civilization flourished around 1500 B.C.--at the time when the Minoan civilization in the island of Crete was also at its peak.

Marinatos believed Crete and Thera were united aout 20,000 years ago. Then the Aegiis sunk and the peaks of the mountains constituted the Cyclades Islands we know today. Thera is one of the Cyclades Islands.

According to his theory the first eruption on Thera took place around 1500 B.C. followed by another a year or two later. These eruptions destroyed the greater part of the island of Thera and might have killed 20,000 to 30,000 of its inhabitants.

Marinatos believed an earthquake preceded the explosion but it seems that the inhabitants stayed. They might have had the time to send a message to Crete and have the Cetans come to save them.

This may have given time to the Cretans to come to the rescue of the inhabitants of Thera and may partly explain finds of Minoan origin.

Engineers Drain Swamp To Increase Nile Waters

By Michael Malik

KHARTOUM

Reuter--The dream of 19th century engineers to increase the life-giving waters of the Nile is to become a reality with a multi-million dollar plan to dry out one of the largest swamps in the world.

Work is to start next year on digging a 180-mile canal through the massive Sudd Swamp in sourthern Sudan to funnel water to the parched north of Sudan and into Egypt.

But although the Sudanese and Egyptian governments are fully committed to the $350 million Jonglei Canal project, experts are worried about possible repercussions on the ecology and wild life of the region. There are also some political doubts.

The two countres are sharing the cost equally and under an agreement the extra water will be divided according to the population--thus giving Egypt over two thirds.

The Sudd covers an area of 2,500 square miles with its northern extremity reaching almost to Malkal, about 400 miles south of Khartoum.

This part of Sudan enjoys heavy rainfall varying between 30 inches and 50 inches a year, compared with the arid areas to the north and the virtually rainless mass of Egypt which the Nile flows before reaching the Mediterranean. But hugh amounts of water which fall in southern Sudan are of no benefit to the north because the Sudd soaks up the rain like a sponge, holding it until it is lost in evaporation and seepage.

"The amount of water lost in the Sudd is the stagering figure of 42,000,000-000 cubic meters a year," according to Sudan's minister of Irrigation and Electric Power, Sayed Yahya Abdel Mageed.

"The object of the Jonglei scheme is to squeeze this sponge and release the water it is holding into the Nile at the same time provinding more cultivatable land by draining the swamp," the minister said.

Ever since the first engineers followed the early British explorers up the Nile out of Egypt and into the Sudan, the idea of the project has existed.

The swamp is formed round a huge westwad loop of the White Nile north of Juba, where it divides into the two rivers known locally as the Behr ed Jebel and the Behr el Zeraf.

As early as 1898 the first suggestions were made for cutting of the loop--formed where the rivers join again--with a canal leaving the mainstream at Jonglei and cutting straight north up to Malakal, a distance of some 190 miles.

"In the early days the sole purpose of the minds of the British engineers who carried out a survey in 1904 was to produce an increase in the flow of water to Egypt so as to aid the growing of cotton. No though was given to what possible consequences this might have for the Sudan," said the minister, himself a qualified engineer.

The plan also envisaged dams on Lakes Victoria, Albert, and Kyoga, the main sources of the Nile, to regulate the flow of water and stop annual fluctuations caused by different rainfall at various times of year.

"This idea not only ignored any benefit to the Fast African countries which contain the lakes, but would mean that all the cattle-raising nomads in the Sudd area, who since the beginning of time have depended on the fluctuation of the water leve to feed their herds, would be left without seasonal grazing land," Sayed Mageed explained.

British plans were well advanced by 1938, but World War II intervened and the project was not revived until after the Egyptian revolution in 1952, followed in 1956 by the granting of independence to Sudan.

Afte the Awsan Dam was built in Egypt it was possible to draw up a new agreement between the two countries to increase Sudan's share of the Nile waters and lift the old restriction which forbade it from taking any water out of the river for irrigation in the summer months.

Cameron, Texas

We congratulate the ninety-seven (97) business men and women of Cameron who took time from their busy lives for more continuing education. These people attended the University of Texas at Austin seminar in Accounts Management Awareness and ninety-two (92) received certificates.

The course was purchased and sponsored by the First National Bank in Cameron and held in the community room of the First United Methodist Church. The First National officers and employees were excellent hosts. We appreciated being invited to Cameron and having the opportunity to meet and visit with so many fine dedicated people.

We have found your citizens to be friendly with a good attitude toward Cameron and its future. Your Urban Renewal program has been so successful in such a short time that a number of Texas City newspapers have told your story by words and pictures. The people of Cameron have a right to be proud of this progress.

We want to thank our hosts and the many Cameron citizens who made our stay so enjoyable.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

HOUSEWIVES PAID SOCIAL SECURITY UNDER H.R. 9949

Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga (Hawaii)" . . . The purpose of social security is to provide income security in old age or disability, yet 14 percent of aged women have no direct income and are not direct parcitipants to social security. This alarming statistic is due to large measure to the fact that under present law, labor in the home is not covered under social security. As a result, no old age or disability benefits can be awarded to homemakers under the system. . .

"To rectify this obviously unfair situation, I have introduced a bill to provide social security coverage for homemakers.

"The mechanism to accomplish this proposal would be provided by title II of the Social Security Act, which applies to the self-employed. In the case of the homemaker the rate of earning s would be based on a 40-hour work week at the current nonfarm minimum wage level.

"Eligibility would be open to anyone aged 18 or over who is a nonsalaried homemaker, not in any other way employed. If the homemaker is employed elsewhere, such employment must be for fewer than 120 hours per month; otherwise her earnings must be less than the monthly wage earned by someone who worked 40 yours in a week at the Federal minimum wage scale.

"A key element in this bill is that participation in the program is strictly voluntary. And individual who was a homemaker--within the prescribed definition--at any time during the taxable year could elect to be covered as a self-employed individual, with respect to homemaker services performed during such taxable year.

"This voluntary aspect of the bill is very important, since it is designed to exempt families which cannot afford to pay double taxes--first on the husband's earnings and second on the assumed earnings of the wife as a homemaker. . .

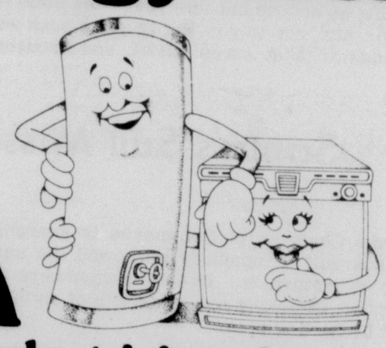
Reducing plan for energy users



Plan A

How to save electricity when using dishwashers-water heaters

1. Wash full load of dishes instead of partial loads.
2. Load dishes according to manufacturer's instructions for most efficient operation.
3. Use dishwasher detergent only.
4. Keep filter-screen free of food waste. (Clogged filter causes unit to overwork.)
5. Repair leaking hot water faucets. (A small leak can waste up to 700 gallons a year, plus the energy used to heat it.)
6. To avoid loss of heat, insulate exposed hot water pipes whenever possible. Protect electric water heater from cold air as much as possible.
7. Select proper size water heater for your needs. One that's too big uses energy needlessly.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it: natural gas, coal and oil. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

When you pass a TP&L office, warehouse, generating plant or other facility, you'll see that we've turned off all non-essential lighting. And, in as many other ways as possible, TP&L is reducing its own uses of electricity.

If you would like additional information on conserving electricity, call or see the Customer Service Representative in the TP&L Office.

Birth Without Violence Studied In France

By Paul Majendie

PARIS Reuter - No-one needs soft lights, peace and quiet more than a baby at the moment it is born.

Babies have a better start in life if they are born in a dimly lit delivery room where all harsh noises are avoided and the child is eased serenely and calmnly into the world.

So says a psychologist who studied the behaviour patterns of 120 children delivered by French Obstetrician Frederick Leboyer whose method of "childbirth without violence" has caused widespread discussion in the medical profession.

So bright lights are cut ou in the delivery room and silence reigns as the baby is rested on the mother's stomach straight after birth. The doctor gently massages its back and then lets the mother take over.

Dangling the child by its feet and waiting for the first yell of life is forbidden.

The umbilical cord is cut only when it stops pulsating and then the child is given a bath in blood-heat water to give it reassurance in its new, unfamiliar world.

At. Dr. Leboyer's request Psychologist Danielle Rapoport took a cross section of 120 of the 1,000 children delivered by him in a Paris clinic. For the study they were subdivided into groups of children aged one, two and three.

Dr. Rapoport's conclusions, to be published in a Psychology Review in January, overwhelmingly support Dr. Leboyer's method.

She said: "out of the 120 couples I interviewed only eight had difficulties with their children. The majority developed very well and had no feeding, sleep or skin problems.

"The babies have a very different start in life as do the mothers and fathers in their relationship with the child. The method seems to have transformed them and given them fantastic reassurance."

She added: "In general they get a better start in life. Obviously childbirth without violence does not protect the baby from all problems but it avoids some.

"One hundred and twelve couples told me they were lucky and had an ideal baby. The adjectives that kept cropping up when the parents described their children were marvelous, intelligent, observant.

"What struck me most during my conversations with parents was the total absence of requests for psychological advice. That is in sharp contrast to my earlier investigations.

"Normally parents confronted with a psychologist take the opportunity of asking for advice. This time all I heard was 'no we haven't any problems' or 'We are lucky when we compare with other children'."

She noticed that all the parents were very open and talkative about their children who on average walked at about 13 months, compared with the norm of 14-15 months.

Easy Holiday Elegance

Glaze small onions with butter, brown sugar and roasted diced almonds for an ideal turkey accompaniment. So easy, so elegant!

If your food store doesn't carry roasted diced almonds, buy whole natural almonds (skins on), chop coarsely and roast in an oiled or buttered pan for about 7 minutes at 350 degrees.

Glazed Onions Almondine

1½ lbs. small white onions, peeled
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
⅓ cup roasted diced almonds

Cook onions in boiling salted water until fork-tender (about 25 minutes). Drain well. In saucepan, combine butter, brown sugar and almonds. Cook, stirring occasionally, until butter and sugar are melted. Add onions and heat through, turning to glaze. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

Help Asked To Recover Stolen Purse

Mrs. Carrie Schmidt is asking for help in recovering a stolen purse taken from a truck parked at 901 W. Gillis Thursday about 4:30 p.m.

The purse is off-white and contained her billfold with important cards and papers. Mrs. Schmidt was picking pecans from the lot when the purse was stolen from the truck.

Anyone with information about the theft is asked to notify The Herald.

Births

To Mr. and Mrs. Grady Elder of La Cygne, Kan., a girl, Erica Dawn, born Nov. 17. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elder of Salina, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Wicke of Atwood, Kan. Great grandmother is Mrs. Grady Little of Cameron.

The stork is held sacred in Sweden, from the legend that it flew round the cross crying "Stryka, Stryka:" when Jesus was crucified.

A ROOFING WORKMAN is shown on top of the American Legion Hut in Ledbetter Park which is being renovated for use by the Edwin Hardy Post for meetings. The building, built with WPA labor during the depression, has been out of use for about a year. It is one of several buildings in the park fashioned of stone brought from across Little River. A plaque on the building lists Post leaders who were in office when the building was constructed.

Correct Address Important

Captain D. O. Wilkerson, drivers license supervisor of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Waco annouced today that Texas drivers should check the address on their drivers license.

Texas law requires persons holding a Texas drivers license to make a change to addresses within ten days after address change.

The proper way to change an address on a drivers license is to have a new license made with a new picture. The fee is $1.

The captain point out that in many cases motorists are injured or become seriously ill while away from their families and the address on the drivers license is the address used by police and medical people to locate their families as soon as possible. In many cases, however, considerable amount of time is used because of incorrect address on the individual's drivers license.

Personal Mention

Iceland Extends Limits To Protect Fish Catches

By Thorsteinn Tharatensen

REYKJAVIK

Reuter--Iceland is once again defying bigger nations in Europe by extending its fishing limits--a move which could lead to another "cod war" with Britain.

At issue is its decision to extend fishing limits from 50 to 200 nautical miles from the Iceland coast in order to preserve the seriously reduced fish population.

Its new limit was imposed on October 15 and immediately applied to West Germany, which has no fisheries agreement with Iceland. As of Thursday it applies to Britain--when the interim Anglo-Icelandic fisheries agreement expires.

After Thursday, Iceland will regard any fishing by British trawlers inside the new limit as illegal.

It was a much smaller increase in limits, from 12 to 50 nautical miles, which led to the "cod war" of 1972 in which the Icelandic Coast Guard cut the nets of British trawlers and British warships were sent to protect them. It was settled by the interim agreement.

In recent weeks there have been meetings between Icelandic and both British and West German ministers--but they have not produced any results.

There are differences between the two disputes since the British fish mainly for cod and the West Germans catch coalfish and red ocean perch.

West German catches off Iceland have dropped in recent years from 120,000 tons to 90,000 tons annually but Britain has been allowed an annual catch of 130,000 tons.

Although Icelandic scientists say all these stocks are in danger, the cod is expecially threatened by overfishing.

Icelandic Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson said recently that the West Germans have for the first time "shown real understanding for our problem of overfishing and are ready to lower their catch on the Icelandic banks more than ever before."

But Agustsson sounded very different when he returned home from talks in london on October 23 and 24 last with foreign office minister of state Roy Hattersley.

"It seems that further talks with the British have no meaning," he declared. "They are blind toward the grave danger of our fish stocks.

"Further talks will be useless, unless the British admit that the cod stock on the Icelandic banks is in such grave danger that they must drastically reduce their catch here," he added.

BICENTENNIAL MUSIC collection is being offered area high schools by JCPenney Co. To date more than 24,000 schools throughout the United States and Puerto Rico have received the gift for use during the Bicentennial Year, 1976.

Last Call Issued For Bicentennial Music Sets

A "last call" to high schools and colleges in the Cameron area which have not yet requested JCPenney's Bicentennial gift of American music was issued here today by Dan Long.

"So far 2 high schools in the Cameron area have received their sets of the Bicentennial Musical Celebration," Dan Long said. "We want to be sure that every school with a band, orchestra, or choral group receives its package of music before our supply runs out."

To date, more than 24,000 schools throughout the United States and Puerto Rico have received the Bicentennial Musical Celebration as a gift from JC Penney in honor of our country's 200th birthday. There are about 30,000 high schools and colleges in the United States.

In addition, several thousand Celebration sets have been presented to churches, choral societies, Girl Scout and Boy Scout orgnizations, police and fire department bands and public libraries. The United States Information Agency has requested and received 85 complete sets for its key posts overseas.

The Bicentennial Musical Celebration contains 35 selections consisting of 70 minutes of music specially arranged to recapture America's past and 30 minutes of newly-commissioned works by contemporary American composers. None of its is available from commercial sources. All of it is scored in sheet music form with full parts of full band, choral group, or orchestra. Music for rock and jazz groups is included as well as folk songs, madrigals, and band music dating as far back as 1770.

Many of the band and choral selections have been recorded by Columbia Masterworks in an album entitled "A Bicentennial Celebration" featuring the world renowned Goldman Band and a mixed chorus under the direction of Leonard DePaur of New York City's Lincoln Center.

Distribution of the music packages will continue until the supply is exhausted. Schools which have not requested sets may do so by contacting the manager of their nearest JCPenney store.

Gas Rates Rising For Industries

Lone Star Gas Company has established new industrial gas rate schedules for all its standard industrial contracts in the state of Texas, with the exception of Dallas and Irving.

The new rates will apply to approximately 3,400 Texas industrial customers that presently receive the Company's services.

The new industrial gas rates will apply immediately to new contracts and will be effective after January 1, 1976 on the anniversary dates of existing contracts which will expire throughout the calendar year.

Governor Urges Safe Driving

Governor Dolph Briscoe has reminded Texans of the forthcoming holidays and urged extreme caution in driving in this potentially dangerous period.

Said the Governor, "Thanksgiving is a time to reflect our successes and to be thankful for the good things of life. It is a time for us to consider a closer relationship with our friends, families, and neighbors. But, it is also a time to be mindful of the start of a busy holiday season.

"We are all going to be rushing to enter the spirit of the holidays. And, with this fast paced life style, some people are forgetful of the need to slow down and be more careful when driving.

"Traditionally, the month of December is a time when traffic deaths start to climb. But, with an increased effort, we can reduce the number of fatalities and injuires that usually occur during the most active time of the year.

"Texas is truly a land of plenty with a sound economy, fine highways, and well planned cities. We have much to be thankful for, yet we still have traffic accidents that kill and injure hundreds of people."

"Therefore, I ask that each Texan accept a personal commitment to be more cautious during this holiday season. Let's make this Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year the best and safest time on Texas streets and highways," concluded Briscoe.

The governor said his staff would increase their public awareness efforts through the media to remind motorists of the hazards of holiday driving.

YOE ADVANCES, STUNS LLANO, 24-0

What turned out to be another one of those expected shut-outs that the Cameron Yoemen have become famous for and a main factor in their ability to own that 'Number One' state rating from the outset, was questioned only in the first quarter in the Bi-District play off game against Llano Friday night at Yellowjacket Stadium. The final scored, 24-0, vaulted the Yoemen into a Regional play off berth with McGregor for the second in a row for the Fighting Yoemen.

The Yoe Fence was more secure than Buchanan Dam, holding off two scoring threats early in the game. Llano was only able to tally 6 first downs during the evening with 4 coming in the first quarter. This was the first time that the Yellowjackets had been shut-out, although they went into the playoffs with a slim 8-2 record.

The Yoe offense dished out their version of the 'backyard whipping' by pounding out yardage that scarred the foreign turf for 278 yards and scoring in the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th quarters. Returning to the regular line up was Jafus White and there was no question that sprained ankles will not heal. Jafus proved that by gathering 126 yards in 18 carries and scroing two touchdowns to lead the Yoe offensive attack.

Dennis Hollas scampered 36 yards in 9 carries to set up the Yoe offense. Yoe OB Michael White rushed for 29 yards in 7 carries and toted the mail across for one touchdown. Joey Mondrik ran for 10 yards and kicked one field goal and three PATs. Aaron Miller gained 47 yards in 11 carries.

Yoe gained 41 aerial yards of offense coming from QB Mike White. Llano had 126 total yards. The Yoemen ran 66 plays while the Yellowjackets had the pork in their possession 41 times.

Home-town fire was built under the Yellowjackets as they were given an opportunity of a season time when the Yoe offense broke a long tradition of no mistake football with a fumble. The Yellowjackets found themselves in ownership on the Yoe 48 yard line. Curtis Crenwelge the only Yellowjacket to handle the ball in the running attack the first quarter, sidestepped the Yoe Fence and marched the ball to the 10 yard line.

The Fence held. And on a fourth down situation, a fake field goal try out-faked the Yellowjackets when the play was unsuccessful from the snap. The Yoe offense took over on the 12.

Three plays later the Yoemen were forced to punt and again Llano owned the ball on the Yoe 34.

Llano QB Joe Ross connected with Ricci Shanks to move the ball to the 17 yard line. Red alert was signaled and the Fence responded holding Llano 4 downs inside the 20. Yoe again took over on their 19.

It wasn't the chill of the north breeze that cooled Yoe fans, but the repeated attacks and shellings that the Yellowjackets were issuing out to the defense.

It wasn't a case for the FBI or even the CIA after that. If the Yellowjackets wanted to socre, their opportunities were about to fade away as fast as their fans did when he Yoemen started their exibition of precision offense and stifling defense.

The Yoe offense started their first successful drive in the first quarter that ended in a second quarter field goal. The Yoemen marched 77 yards in 18 plays to the Llano 4. The Yoe offense was haulted when Dennis Hollas bobbled the hand off and was thrown for a 12 yard loss.

On a fourth down and 14, from the 14, Joey Mondrik toed the mark ith a 24 yard field goal that give the Yoemen a 3-0 lead with 7:35 remaining in the first half.

The Yoe Fence held the Yellowjackets and then started an offensive drive from the 24. The 76 yard drive down to pay dirt took only 10 plays and just over 4 minutes.

With the ball resting on the 24 yard line, Jafus White got the call and zigged-zagged behind the offensive lin blocking and ignited his afterburners for 24 yards. The clock read 1:45 when Joey Mondrik sailed the pig skin through the uprights for the extra point giving the Yoemen a 10-0 safety margin.

The first half ended with the Llano offense featuring their topes that turned out to be the only hopes for the night.

Yoe marched 39 yards on their first offensive possession of the second half and added another 6 point play. Jafus White took the first to calls and bombed his way to the 6. Michael White exploded to the one. Then from one yard out Jafus White plunged into the end zone with 9:01 in the third quarter. Joey Mondrik, with his extra point, gave the Yoemen a 17-0 lead.

In the fourth quarter the Yoemen took possession of the ball on the Llano 43. The drive was given life saving oxygen when Dennis Hollas took a 4th down and 4 call and rambled 11 yards for the first down.

Yoe faced a 4th and 1 from the one when QB Michael White, on a keeper, skipped across untouched to give the Yoemen a fourth quarter lead, 24-0 after Mondrik's kick was signaled good.

Before the evening came to a close Roderick Kelley had intercepted a Ross pass and Donald Hanel recovered a bobbled punt return.

Yoe depth proved to be a winning factor after the first quarter jitters and kinks were removed. Just think what it would have been if there wouldn't have been at least a little excitment.

McGregor Faces Yoe In Regional

Three first half touchdowns were enough offense to give the McGregor Bulldogs the right to meet the Cameron Yoemen in the Regional play-offs. The Bulldogs edged Madisonville 19-14 at Wildcat Stadium in Temple Friday night.

Madisonville's quarterback threaded the needie on a 70 yard pass to Doug Davis for the opening touchdown. Melvin Ford added the extra boot and the Mustangs took their only lead 7-0.

Within 21 seconds McGregor got on the board when Tony Hicks scurried 71 yards for six. Percy Jones added the boot and it was a tie game, 7-7.

The Bulldog defense added another chapter to the story and in four minutes John Hilliard picked off a blocked punt and scored. The extra point conversion failed.

The Bulldog offense continued to churn out necessary vardage and before the half time buzzer sounded Willie Sneed exploded through the magic line from three yards out. The PAT failed and the Bulldogs had a half time lead, 19-7.

Several 'no-nos' plagued the Mustangs when they developed a case of fumbleitis. A disease that is deadly to football.

The Mustangs capitalized on a pass interference call and Ponie QB Herbert Gilbert plunged on from one yard. Thomas Merchant kicked the PAT giving some renewed hopes, 19-14.

The McGregor defense held tough for the remainder of the evening and backed-up the offense to topple the Ponies, 19-14.

SPORTS

Tolar Whallops Milano

Milano committed the unforgivable, to be knocked out of the Regional play-offs by a frisky Tolar offense, 50-28. Tolar's defense was on the scene to give two touchdowns on the Eagles errors, when two pass interceptions became touchdowns.

The Eagles captured the District 8B six-man crown with a perfect 4-0 district slate but finished the year 5-4.

Kevin Fry bounced through the evening and scored five touchdowns and returned one interception 17 yards for another. Larry Harkins raced 30 yards on a kick off return TD. Fry also returned a kick off 70 yards when he side-stepped the Eagles all the way into pay dirt.

The Eagles scored two touchdowns from the ground and the two from the aerial attack.

David Gunnels scored on both the running plays. His first came on a 29 yard scamper. Gunnels saw daylight when he tagged home base from 33 yards out.

Gary Westbrooks connected with Tommy Coldiron on a 15 yard pass TD. Later Westbrook threaded the needle on a 48-yard pass to Kenny Myers.

Milano gained 329 yards of offense to Tolar's 165 but the mistakes, as told by the statistics, gave a clear signal of how the game is to signal of how the game was to be played.

Schulenburg Over Eagles In Bi-District

Mike Olle, Schulenburg quarterback did "All-E" when he led the Shorthorns from a deficit to a clear-cut victory over the Rogers Eagles.

Olle passed for 112 yards, connected one time for 19, and ran for 19 yards.

The Eagles took an early lead when they recovered a fumble to set up the first score. Gary Douglas, Larry Clowers, and Elwood McKinzy battled out the 48 yard before Douglas ripped through on a 17 yard scoring run.

Grygar added the extra point giving the Eagles a 7-0 lead. Willie Stevens capped a 86 yard drive for the Shorthorns first touchdown with 5:50 remaining in the second quarter. The PAT failed.

With 2:27 remaining before half time, Schulenberg got the go ahead on a three yard pass to Marvin Jackson. The TD was set up on a 40 yard pass to Chris Cernosek.

The Shorthorns had gained a 12-7 half time lead after both PATs failed.

The final strike came in the fourth quarter when Stevens raced in from 5 yards out but fumbled the ball into the end zone. Ronnie Orsak, Shorthorn lineman, grabbed te loose ball and tallied the six.

Hot Catalytic Converters Could Start Pasture Fire

AUSTIN

Sportsmen who won 1975 pickup trucks and passenger cars equipped with catalytic converters need to think twice before driving through a pasture of dry grass during the hunting season.

Temperatures inside the converters reach 1,200-1,300 degress Fahrenheit, twice the temperature of regular exhaust systems. Since converters are slow to cool, such equipped vehicles could start a grass fire--no way to treat a hunting lease.

Officials at the Parks and Wildlife Department say that vehicles under the 6,000 pounds gross vehicular weight rating (GVWR) usually have converters.

This includes most half ton pickups, passenger cars, and some popular off-road vehicles.

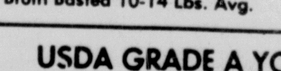
Pickup trucks with heavy-duty suspensions which place them over the 6,000 pound GVWR are free of the converters.

The U. S. Army has banned the use of converter-equipped vehicles within 50 feet of any aircraft, fuel spill, explosive area, or other potentially hazardous area.

Tests by a major oil refinery indicate that when a 1975 model vehicle runs out of fuel, the temperature increases enough to completely destroy the catalyst. Apparently misfiring associated with low fuel allows large amounts of unburned fuel to enter the converter, causing higher temperatures.

Dealers have replaced converters which have literally melted due to extreme temperatures approaching 2,000 degress Fahrenheit.

The carpeting and floormats of 1975 automobiles have been scorched or burned by heat from the converters.



The cossacks along the Don river in Russia elected their leader by throwing their fur caps at him.
